THE COLLEGE COMMITTEE.

It is a great satisfaction to the College Committee to report that Sir Robert Waley Cohen has accepted election as Vice-Chairman, in succession to the late Lord Meston, whose lamented death was recorded last year.

Sir Robert Waley Cohen has been Chairman of the Managing Sub-Committee since January 1938; and his willingness to hold two such important offices in the College is evidence of his keen interest in its welfare. He has been a member of the College Committee since June 1932 and, prior to that, rendered invaluable service to the Ramsay Memorial Laboratory of Chemical Engineering, of which he is Chairman of the Advisory Committee. His knowledge of affairs, his wise judgment, and his readiness to give of his time and energy are highly valued by all who are concerned with the management and administration of the College. His colleagues on the College Committee hope that for many years to come they will continue to have the support of his presence amongst them. It is pleasant to recall that, as a grandson of Jacob Waley, who occupied the Chair of Political Economy from 1853 to 1866, his connection with University College did not begin with his own active participation in its affairs.

There have been no changes in the personnel of the College Committee during the period covered by this Report.

STAFF AND STUDENTS.

Resumption of work in London.

The Session 1944–45 is notable for the resumption in London of a considerable portion of the work of the College and the re-opening of all parts of the buildings available for University teaching at the present time. This was in accordance with the desire expressed by the College Committee in their 1944 Report. The problem of how to achieve it was not an easy one to solve. Plans have had to be made and unmade as fresh difficulties have been encountered. Not the least of these has been the shortage of living accommodation for staff and students, to which a fuller reference is made below (p. 20). This has been a contributing factor to the decision that all Faculties and Departments should not be brought back to London at one and the same time, but that the return should be gradual. Thus, the departments of the Faculties of Arts and Science which had been evacuated to Aberystwyth, the Department of History from Bangor, and the Faculty of Engineering from Swansea, were the first to come, re-opening in October. The remaining Bangor departments followed in time to re-open in the Second Term of the Session. The Slade School, the Bartlett School of Architecture, the Department of Political Economy, the Faculty of Laws and the Faculty of Medical Sciences are remaining at least until the end of the Session at Oxford, Cambridge and Leatherhead respectively. By means of this scheme, it has been possible to provide and equip a sufficient number of class-rooms for the Faculty of Arts in reconstructed premises in Foster Court, to proceed with the re-instatement of the available laboratories, and to establish temporary Common Rooms for staff and students in the Slade School.

The Committee realise that the inevitable shortage of labour and materials has greatly hindered preparations and that considerable inconvenience, if not actual discomfort, must have been felt by all sections of the community, more especially during the first stages of re-assembling during the Autumn Term. The cheerful, understanding spirit which has prevailed has been most helpful. With amenities so severely restricted a certain amount of complaint might have been expected, but, on the contrary, a desire to render practical assistance has been shown on every hand. During the Long Vacation, bands of student volunteers, between eighty and ninety in all, gave time and physical energy to the task of cleaning and moving furniture. Their help was invaluable, and the joyous spirit in which it was given augured well for a happy student life in the re-assembled College. The entire community is indebted to these willing workers, without whose help it would not have been possible to attain the degree of preparedness which was achieved in time to enable the classes to get to work in the middle of October. Members of the academic staff have since taken their share in the work of settling-in. In short, all members of the College have shown their pleasure in the return to Gower Street in a way which has been most gratifying.

The College Committee desire again to record their keen appreciation of the generous manner in which students of the College have been received by the host Colleges, often, it is feared, at no little inconvenience to themselves. In a long period of evacuation, during which many students have entered and left the College after completing their courses without any personal contact with Gower Street, it follows that friendships have been formed and other ties created in the actual place of study which will bind the Colleges together to their mutual advantage in days to come. For a number of our students, the pleasure of feeling that they are within their own walls will be mingled with an inevitable regret at having had to leave places where they have been so kindly treated. This applies in the present instance to the students who have been working at University College of Wales, Aberystwyth; University College of North Wales, Bangor ; and University College of Swansea. To all these Colleges of the University of Wales sincerest thanks are due.

The Provost and Mrs. Pye invited members of the Academic and Administrative Staffs to meet Lord Sankey and other members of the College Committee at tea in the Refectory on 19th October, at the close of which Lord Sankey made a brief speech of welcome to the representatives of the re-assembled College thus gathered together within its walls for the first time for over five years.

The Provost extended a corporate welcome to the students from Aberystwyth and Swansea at a brief meeting held in Woburn Hall early in the First Term, and to the students from Bangor at a similar gathering at the opening of the Second Term.

The following table gives the position regarding the distribution of students as at the opening of the Second Term of the current Session (January, 1945). For the purposes of comparison, the figures of 1943–44 are given in brackets :—

SESSION 1944–45.

Centre.	Course.	Number of Students. Men.	Women.
(i.) London.*	(a) Faculty of Arts.....	77 (65)	314 (225)
	(b) Faculty of Science	147 (119)	130 (85)
	Intermediate Science for Medicine	10 (23)	11 (12)
	(c) Faculty of Engineering .	122 (71)	5 (3)
(ii.) Oxford (The Ruskin School of Drawing).	Slade School of Fine Art ...	22 (17)	85 (75)
(iii.) Cambridge.	(a) Bartlett School of Architecture	30 (23)	37 (37)
	(b) Department of Political Economy	10 (8)	13 (4)
	(c) Faculty of Laws	20 (9)	2 (6)
(iv.) Leatherhead.	Faculty of Medical Sciences (Second and later years) .	83 (80)	40 (40)
		521 (415)	637 (487)
	Total number of students ...	1,158 (902)

Of the above students, 59 (25) are postgraduate, 874 (680) are preparing for first degrees, 145 (115) for diplomas, 7 (5) for Architecture Certificates, and 73 (77) are taking other courses in Arts, Fine Art, Science or Engineering.

It will be noted that in almost every group there is an increase in numbers this session, the total increase on the figure of last session being 256. Such an increase, viewed in the light of the call-up of young men and women of the student age, which is still in full operation, can only be generally accounted for by the ever-growing demand for University training leading to careers likely to be of service to the nation after the War and recognised for that purpose by the Government. The return to London has undoubtedly increased the number seeking such training at the College in the Faculties of Arts, Science and Engineering. The striking increase in the number of men students taking the Laws course at Cambridge is due to the unexpected influx of students from West Africa, eleven of whom have entered for the course. The fewer students taking the Science Course for Medicine is partly due to the growing practice of taking the First Medical course at school and applying for direct entry into the Second Medical course. The position created by the absence of adequate facilities in London for women medical students in the clinical stages of their course has become so acute during the past twelve months that the Committee are hopeful that steps will be taken by the University in the near future to improve it. In the meantime, the restriction to the number of women admitted to the pre-clinical course will have to be continued.

The number of postgraduate and research workers, which has more than doubled since last session, is a welcome sign of returning activity to a side of College work which has been so seriously hindered by the War, but which may confidently be expected to flourish and expand when more favourable conditions have been established.

Living Accommodation for Students.—The question of living accommodation for a large number of students whose homes were outside Greater London had engaged the attention of the College Committee some months before the opening of the session. The need for finding some special means of meeting a situation that might well become acute was rendered all the more pressing owing to the circumstances connected with the Halls of Residence. University College Hall, Ealing, after suffering air-raid damage, had been requisitioned for the National Fire Service and there was no immediate prospect of it being available as a hostel for men students. Connaught Hall, the University Hall of Residence for men students, was willing to help, but could only accept a very small number from University College ; College Hall, Malet Street, had suffered heavy damage and was only able to utilise one-third of its original premises for women students of several Colleges. Actually, twenty-two women students of University College have secured admission as residents.

With a view to helping the position, and also to promoting the residential collegiate atmosphere which proved so valuable at the evacuation centres, a project of Student Residences, with study-bedrooms and common rooms, in the near neighbourhood of the College was approved and, as a preliminary step, the leases of three houses in Gower Street were acquired. It had been the intention of the College Committee to acquire also the leases of seven houses in Gordon Street, bringing up the total estimated accommodation to some 150 students (105 women and 45 men). As, however, the necessary permit to proceed with the repairs and alterations was not forthcoming, that part of the scheme has, perforce, been postponed. The Committee are greatly indebted to Dr. David Heron and Professor G. B. Jeffery for their keen interest and active help, both in the conception of the scheme and in the implementing of it. There were good hopes that it might be put into operation at the opening of the session, but the difficulties of labour and supply of materials and furniture proved too great. It has, however, been found possible by a considerable effort on the part of the Works Department to get the Gower Street houses ready for the Second Term, and to instal some forty women students there with Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Tancock in charge. The expert advice and ready help of Miss Small, the Steward of the College Refectory, in the important matter of meals has been essential to the scheme. There is every reason to believe that these Student Residences, when in full working order, will prove very popular among the students for whom they are intended. Meantime the University Lodgings Officer, Mrs. Moore, has been most helpful in advising students as to immediate accommodation.

A standing committee to deal with all questions relating to students' living accommodation has been set up by the College Committee.

Student Activities.—Turning to the immediate past, the College Committee realise that the spirit of corporate unity which has been so manifest in the re-assembling in London is due in very large measure to the way in which that spirit has been fostered and promoted by the students themselves during the period of evacuation. The two Union Societies and the Inter-Union Standing Committee continued their efforts in this direction throughout the session 1943–44, acting through their representatives at the various centres and being greatly aided by the editorial board of New Phineas, the College Magazine, without which it would have been difficult for the different sections to keep in touch with each other's doings. As in former evacuation years, the committees of the Men's and Women's Union Societies and the Inter-Union Standing Committee have held vacation meetings at Gower Street and have jointly discussed general student problems, more especially those connected with the resumption of work in London and post-war plans for development.

A modified form of Foundation Week was again, in 1944, observed with customary fidelity in the larger centres. At Aberystwyth, Professor Andrade delivered the Foundation Address with " Science and Culture " as his theme. The function was arranged for the late afternoon and was followed by a dinner. Special interest was aroused by the somewhat unusual choice of " Noah " (André Obey) for the Foundation Play. The way in which difficulties of production were overcome, and the spirited performance of the players, reflected great credit on the producer, Miss Elizabeth Sweeting, of the staff of the Department of English. A dance, a sing-song and a debate with invited representatives of King's College, completed a programme which was carried through with complete success. At Bangor, the Address was given by Miss Georgiadis, a past-President of the Women's Union Society. Three performances of Bernard Shaw's " Pygmalion " were given to full houses, and there was an orchestral and choral concert, arranged with the kindly co-operation of the Director of Music at University College of North Wales. Speakers from that College and from King's College joined in the debate. Friendly co-operation between the host and guest colleges also extended to the Foundation Games, in which U.C.L. won the " Rugger " match and drew the " Soccer " match. A novel item in the programme was a Foundation Meeting, at which members of the staff paved the way for the return to London by talks on the College in Gower Street, thus carrying on the work of Professor Chambers, whose last effort for the College was to foster among present students a love of its traditions and to make them conscious of its great past. At Leatherhead, Professor Lancelot Hogben, of the University of Birmingham, gave an Address on the Government's White Paper for a National Health Service ; there was a Foundation Ball, an original revue entitled " Foundation Cream ", performed in the Fetcham Village Hall, and a Football Match against a team from University College Hospital Medical School. The Foundation Week Celebrations of the Engineering Students at Swansea were inaugurated by a " rag procession " and included a " rag rugger match " in the Foundation Games against the host college. Among the more conventional items, an Address by Professor Fawcett on " The University and the Student " was greatly appreciated ; he was welcomed at a Foundation Tea.

The Cambridge centre carried through with great success the ambitious undertaking of a Fancy Dress Foundation Ball on a large scale, which was attended by more than 400 students, mostly from London Colleges in evacuation at Cambridge.

It was a matter of great regret at all the centres that the Provost, whose health was not then fully restored after an operation, was unable to participate, as in 1943, in the various Foundation Celebrations. He had to postpone his round of visits until later in the session.

The Faculty of Laws and the Department of Political Economy, which are continuing at Cambridge, while still in that state of " U.C.L. consciousness " which led to the formation of a U.C.L. Cambridge Society, have continued to benefit from their close intercourse with the London School of Economics and from the many opportunities afforded by their sojourn at a famous seat of learning.

The Bartlett School of Architecture is looking forward to a return to London next Autumn, after spending six sessions at Cambridge. The annual records of those sessions have shown that not only has the work of the School reaped much benefit by its association with the Cambridge School of Architecture, but the students have been fortunate in their opportunities for mingling with those of other colleges domiciled, most of them temporarily, at Cambridge. It is inevitable that their departure from such a centre of University life should be tinged with sincere regret, but the College Committee are happy to know that this regret is out-weighed by a natural desire to work in their own buildings and to be in direct contact with other sections of their own College. A warm welcome awaits them.

The Slade School continues to flourish at Oxford in happy association with the Ruskin School of Drawing and in the congenial setting of the Ashmolean Museum. With increased numbers this session, and with that equal zest for work and play which has always characterised the Slade student, there has been plenty of activity. While lively social events have not been lacking, the Slade Society has catered for the more serious side of the corporate life by arranging addresses by visitors and discussions on controversial topics in the world of Art. It is a fortunate circumstance that the School is able to function so well in evacuation, while the accommodation afforded by its own large rooms is so much needed by other sections of the College, pending the rehabilitation of the Gower Street buildings. Nevertheless, the College Committee will welcome the time when "the Slade" can once more take up the part allotted to it in the general life of the College, in which no other department can take its place.

The residential collegiate life of the medical students has proceeded happily in the congenial setting at Leatherhead, but they are also looking forward to a return to London in the Autumn. Two more College men were successful in 1944 in obtaining, in competition with other British medical students, Studentships granted by the Rockefeller Foundation for clinical training at a University in the United States or Canada at a time when such facilities may not be available in this country.

The limits of a war-time Report prohibit a more detailed record of student life. The foregoing brief review of the past twelve months, taken in conjunction with those of the preceding War years, will have shown that, while there has been the inevitable loss associated with evacuation and separation, this has been offset by opportunities for regular intercourse with students of other colleges which cannot fail to broaden the sympathies of the student world as a whole. In sport, there has been healthy rivalry between the host and guest colleges, and plenty of good team-work. University College students have also taken their share of the local war-time activities of their respective centres, such as fire-watching, Home Guard exercises and the like.

A University College Company of the University of London Senior Training Corps has now been formed at Gower Street, with Professor (Captain) C. J. Sisson as its Commanding Officer. Lecture time-tables have been so arranged as to set free the time required for drills, and other facilities have been placed at the disposal of the Company.

The Old Students' Association has suffered severely by the interruption of its social activities and the consequent loss of touch with the majority of its members, inevitable in war-time, but the claims of the Association have continued to be brought before students as they have qualified for membership, and many recruits have been gained during the evacuation period through the efforts of sectional representatives. This side of the work will be greatly facilitated by the return to London. A Reunion of past and present students, such as was so happily inaugurated at the New Year of 1943, is contemplated for the early Spring. Dr. F. C. Harris, the Hon. Secretary of the Association, is rendering a great service to the College by his efforts, in the face of many difficulties, to keep its alumni conscious of their continued membership of it. Dr. Paul Haas retains the office of President of the Association, and Mr. T. L. Wren is Hon. Treasurer.

THE ACADEMIC STAFF.

The return to London of the Aberystwyth, Bangor and Swansea units has relieved Professor C. J. Sisson, Professor G. B. Jeffery and Professor R. O. Kapp of the administrative responsibilities which they have respectively been carrying as Pro-Provost at those centres ; in the case of Professor Jeffery and Professor Kapp during the entire period of evacuation, and in the case of Professor Sisson during the Session 1943–44, after the retirement of Professor Butler. The College Committee desire to express their sense of indebtedness to these Professors for the readiness with which they each assumed an office which must at times have proved an arduous combination with their departmental responsibilities, and for the manner in which they performed the duties attached to that office. Without their valued help, the smooth running of administration at the three centres concerned would, indeed, have been difficult. In the same way Professor F. R. Winton has rendered the greatest assistance as Pro-Provost of the Medical Sciences section at Leatherhead. His Department of Pharmacology, having completed its under-graduate teaching for the session, is now back in London as an advance guard of the Faculty and Professor Lovatt Evans, released from National Service, has succeeded Professor Winton as Pro-

Provost at Leatherhead. Professor Keeton and Professor Schwabe are continuing as Pro-Provosts at Cambridge and at Oxford respectively.

There are still certain departments, the Heads of which have yet to be appointed or are temporarily absent. The following members of the staff are Acting-Heads during the current session (1944–45) :—

Faculty of Arts :

Italian	Professor B. Woledge.
Latin	Dr. J. F. Lockwood.
Philosophy	Dr. S. V. Keeling.
Political Economy	Dr. P. N. Rosenstein-Rodan.

Faculty of Science :

Geology	Dr. L. J. Chubb.

Faculty of Medical Sciences :

Anatomy	Dr. Una Fielding.
Embryology and Histology	Mr. K. C. Richardson.
Biochemistry	Dr. L. Margaret Kerly.

Professor G. T. R. Hill has resumed the duties of the Kennedy Chair of Engineering and the Directorship of the Engineering Laboratories. During his absence the Assistant Professor, Mr. B. J. Lloyd-Evans, was in charge. Mr. Orson Wood was in charge of the Department of Physics until it re-opened in London with Professor Andrade once more in control, and Dr. O. L. Brady was responsible for the section of the Department of Chemistry which went to Bangor.

Dr. L. W. Tancock and Mr. H. Terrey have now, with the return to London, been relieved of their evacuation appointments as Assistant Tutor to Arts Students at Bangor and to Science Students at Aberystwyth respectively, in which they gave such effective support to the Senior Tutor, Mr. Orson Wood, and the Tutor to Arts Students, Dr. J. F. Lockwood. Dr. D. H. Smyth is continuing as Sub-Dean and Tutor to Medical Students, and Mr. K. C. Richardson as House Tutor, at Leatherhead ; also Mr. L. Stuart Stanley as Tutor to Architecture Students at Cambridge, and Mr. R. Nuttall-Smith as general administrative officer of the Slade School at Oxford. To each member of the staff who has thus performed, and in some cases is still performing, the special additional duties indicated, the College Committee desire to accord their appreciative thanks. By means of their help the many problems of evacuation have been successfully overcome, and the arrangements have run as smoothly as possible in such unusual conditions.

A special reference to Miss Edith Goodyear, Tutor to Women Students since 1926, seems opportune here. The time for a valedictory appreciation of her work has not yet come, for, happily, she is still taking her accustomed place in the life of the College ; but her retirement was officially accepted as at the end of the Session 1943–44. To appoint a successor to one so closely identified with the College, as student, teacher and administrative officer, has required much consideration. Miss Goodyear, with a characteristic desire to serve the best interests of the students, consented to continue her daily attendance at the College until a new appointment could be made. (See p. 31.)

It has not been the custom in the war-time Annual Reports to record every variation in the personnel of the Academic Staff, but there are again this year outstanding changes which must be noted.

Professor John Macmurray resigned the Grote Chair of the Philosophy of Mind and Logic at the close of 1943–44, in view of his appointment as successor to Professor Alfred Edward Taylor in the Chair of Moral Philosophy at Edinburgh. He came to the College from Oxford, where he had been Jowett Lecturer at Balliol, in 1928 and at once took his place on the professoriate most happily, rapidly acquiring the affection and esteem of his colleagues. Under his inspiring leadership, the Department of Philosophy sprang into new life, not merely in the Honours School, whose development was striking, but also in the Junior years. Collaboration with other Colleges in the Higher Senior work developed rapidly and Professor Macmurray aided other departments of his own College, such as History, Economics and German, by providing courses suitable for their students. His intellectual outlook inclined him to view the cultural life of a University on broad, rather than departmental, lines. His previous experience as Professor in one of the newer Imperial Universities, that of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, his visits to the Universities of Canada and the United States, and the students who came to his own classes from those countries, must all have tended to widen an academic sympathy which was naturally catholic and which showed itself in all his relations at the College. In more recent years, when the misfortune of War hindered the work in Philosophy, he served the College in its relation to members of the outside public. The initiation of the scheme of Public Lunch-Hour Lectures for London war-time workers was due to him and, both by his own personal touch with the audiences as lecturer or chairman and by his success in enlisting the co-operation of well-known experts on topics affecting current problems, he built up an enthusiastic body of supporters who attended regularly. His success in this direction is fully recorded in last year's Report. Taking all in all, the College has lost much by Professor Macmurray's return to the land of his birth and upbringing. He will always be assured of a warm welcome to the scene of his London labours when occasion brings him South.

Pending the appointment of a new Grote Professor, Dr. S. V. Keeling is Acting-Head of the Department of Philosophy. Professor G. W. Keeton has taken over the arrangement of Public Lunch-Hour Lectures (see also p. 32).

Dr. William Harold Pearsall, F.R.S., has succeeded Professor E. J. Salisbury in the Quain Chair of Botany. He had, since 1938, been Professor of Botany at the University of Sheffield, and prior to that was Reader at the University of Leeds.

Following on the resignation of Professor R. A. Fisher from the Galton Chair of Eugenics, recorded last year, the College Committee have reviewed the position of that department in its relation to cognate branches of the College work. As a result a combined Department of Eugenics, Biometry and Genetics has been established, with the Weldon Professor of Biometry, Professor J. B. S. Haldane, as its Head. Dr. Lionel Sharples Penrose has been appointed to the Galton Chair.

As the appointment of Professor G. B. Jeffery, from 1st October, 1945, as Director of the Institute of Education has been announced, the Committee feel that the record of the year would not be complete without some reference to it, although this is not the time to make a valedictory statement. The news of the impending resignation, at the close of the current session, of one who has played such a forceful part in the life and affairs of the College could not but be received with the utmost regret by those who have its welfare at heart, but they realise that Professor Jeffery's administrative powers would seem to have marked him out for such an appointment and that what will be a great loss to the College cannot fail to be a corresponding gain to the University.

The Senate have conferred the title of Professor Emeritus on Professor H. E. Butler, whose retirement from the Chair of Latin was recorded last year.

Certain outstanding honours conferred on members of the professoriate have brought much pleasure to their colleagues and students. His Majesty the King conferred, at the New Year, the honour of Knighthood on Professor Patrick Abercrombie, in recognition of the great work he has already achieved in connection with the post-war planning of London. Professor A. E. Richardson has been elected a Royal Academician. Professor Sir Jack Drummond is now a Fellow of the Royal Society. A special honour was also accorded to Professor A. V. Hill by the invitation extended to him by the Government of India to investigate and report upon the whole position of Indian Scientific Research. A large part of the Winter of 1943–44 was spent on this task in India and was followed by the visit to Britain last Autumn of five eminent Indian scientists as the guests of His Majesty's Government. The recent publication of Professor Hill's report on his mission has created great interest.

Mr. J. D. Cowley had resigned the office of Director of the School of Librarianship on his appointment as Goldsmiths' Librarian of the University as from 1st August, 1944. It had been the hope of the College Committee that they would still have the benefit of Mr. Cowley's help, if only in an advisory capacity, when the work of the School, suspended since the outbreak of War, could be resumed. The news of his untimely and tragic death on 20th August came as a great shock to his many friends at the College. A tribute to him will be found on p. 38. Mr. J. H. Pafford, Lecturer in the School of Librarianship, has been appointed Goldsmiths' Librarian. The new Director of the School has yet to be appointed, but the necessary steps are being taken to find a worthy successor to Mr. Cowley.

Two members of the non-professorial staff have been appointed to Chairs elsewhere. Mr. Geoffrey Tillotson, Reader in the Department of English, is now Professor of English Literature at Birkbeck College; Dr. M. A. Thomson, Reader in Constitutional History, is Professor of Modern History at the University of Liverpool. Dr. C. F. Goodeve, Reader in Chemistry, has also resigned his appointment to take up another post. All were valued members of the College, who have left a large circle of friends to regret their departure.

Dr. R. E. Mortimer Wheeler, Lecturer in British Archæology and Fellow of the College, has been appointed Director-General of Archæology in India. While appreciating this evidence of the high distinction accorded to him in a field of study in which he has done such valuable work in the University, his own College cannot but regret the severance which is involved.

The title of Reader in Mediæval History has been conferred by the Senate on Dr. J. H. Le Patourel and that of Reader in Zoology on Mr. G. P. Wells, both formerly Lecturers.

Dr. W. H. Newton, Reader in Physiology, resigned at the end of March 1944 to take up the appointment of Holt Professor of Physiology at the University of Liverpool, thereby joining the large company of those who have left that department to occupy Chairs at other Universities. He had been a much-valued member of the Medical Sciences staff since 1930 and for several years had effectively served the Faculty as Sub-Dean and Tutor to Medical Students. His departure is a great loss to the College, but he takes with him into his new sphere of activity the cordial good wishes of his many friends at Gower Street and Leatherhead.

Dr. G. Schwarzenberger, Lecturer in International Law, has been appointed Sub-Dean of the Faculty of Laws.

The Professorial Board.—During the Easter and Summer Vacations of 1944, meetings of the Professorial Board and other academic committees were again held in the hospitable atmosphere of a week-end at Leatherhead. Since the resumption of work in London the meetings of the Board and its committees have been fully representative and the need for Leatherhead week-ends may no longer arise. The opportunities which they have so pleasantly afforded for the members of the scattered units of the College to come together for discussions, both formal and informal, of the many acute problems facing the College as a whole, have been invaluable during the evacuation period, and the College Committee desire to take this opportunity of recording their appreciation of the public-spirited action on the part of the Leatherhead centre at a time of special need.

Dr. R. C. Brown (Lecturer in Physics), Dr. H. R. Ing (Reader in Physiological Chemistry), and Dr. J. F. Lockwood (Reader in Classics) have been appointed members of the Board for the Session 1944–45 under College Statute 24 (5) in place of Dr. R. O. Buchanan, Dr. Constance Rigby and Dr. A. H. Smith.

GENERAL FINANCE.

Financial Year 1943–44.

The audit of the College Accounts for the financial year 1943–44 has not been completed, owing to war-time difficulties, in time for the usual practice to be followed of appending to this Report the College Establishment Income and Expenditure Account and the Balance Sheet. (See note in Appendix I.) The general financial position as at 31st July, 1944, was as follows :—

College Establishment Income and Expenditure Account.

Income.—The ordinary income increased by £10 19*s.* 3*d.*, from £161,649 9*s.* 2*d.* to £161,660 8*s.* 5*d.* The main causes were an increase of £985 in the income from Fees and an increase of £164 in the amount appropriated from Donations and Subscriptions, owing to increased expenditure. On the other hand, there was a decrease of £759 in the amount appropriated from Endowments (Trust Funds) and a decrease of £377 under the head of Other Income.

Expenditure. — The ordinary expenditure increased by £3,490 14*s.* 2*d.*, from £134,770 9*s.* 6*d.* to £138,261 3*s.* 8*d.* The main causes were increases of £1,519 under the head of Administration, £1,122 under the head of Departmental Maintenance and £1,105 under the head of Maintenance of Premises. On the other hand, there was a decrease of £503 under the head of Fellowships, Scholarships and Prizes.

The excess of ordinary income over ordinary expenditure was thus £23,399 4*s.* 9*d.*, which, together with the sum of £4,103 5*s.* 5*d.* received in respect of the temporary occupation of College buildings, was sufficient to meet the cost of evacuation, accommodation in other Colleges, and War Damage Insurance, in addition to the other extraordinary expenditure, leaving a surplus of £9,111 7*s.* 6*d.* This surplus, together with the available surplus income of Trust Funds appropriated under the Emergency Statute, was allocated as follows :—£23,400 to General Reserve Fund, £365 17*s.* 2*d.* to General Library Reserve Fund, and a final surplus in respect of 1943–44 of £40 5*s.* 11*d.* carried forward.

BENEFACTIONS AND DONATIONS.

The College Committee make grateful acknowledgement of the Grants, Subscriptions and Donations received from the bodies and persons named in Appendix II. (pages 43–44).

They also desire to record their thanks for the following further gifts received during the past twelve months :—

(i.) Gifts to the Library.

Mr. H. W. Atkinson, through the National Central Library.

A collection of 82 volumes and pamphlets, chiefly mathematical, from the library of his brother, the late Mr. E. C. Atkinson.

Professor H. H. Bellot, Commonwealth Professor of American History in the College.

A collection of 20 volumes on American History.

Dr. T. Estermann, Reader in the Department of Mathematics of the College.

230 mathematical pamphlets.

The Eugenics Society.

56 volumes, chiefly dealing with heredity.

Miss F. G. Francis.

20 volumes on the archæology of Roman Britain, from the library of her father, the late A. G. Francis, O.B.E., F.S.A., F.R.C.S., a former student of the College.

International African Institute.

A collection of 131 pamphlets dealing with the agriculture of Africa and Egypt.

Lieut.-Commander G. T. Jones.

The Phonetics library of his father, the late Stephen Jones, formerly a member of the staff of the Phonetics Department of the College.

The executors of the late Lady Lockyer, through the good offices of Professor Glanville and Sir Richard Gregory, F.R.S.

106 volumes of archæology, folk-lore, etc.

The London County Council.

40 volumes, including botanical and chemical works and several dictionaries.

Public Salvage Drive, through the kindness of Mr. C. B. Oldman, Assistant Keeper of the Department of Printed Books in the British Museum.

241 volumes, chiefly Biography and History.

Mrs. Wallace.

31 volumes of Classics and English literature, from the library of the late Percy Wallace, formerly Secretary to the Senate of the University of London.

The Rev. G. D. C. Wheeler, through the Bodleian Library.

4 Latin Classical works printed in the 16th and 17th centuries.

(ii.) Other Gifts.

A committee formed to raise a memorial to the late Mr. P. Wilson Steer, O.M., Assistant Professor in the Slade School (1899–1930) have given the sum of £1,001 9*s*. 2*d*. for the endowment of a Steer Memorial Silver Medal in the Slade School, to be awarded for "an outstanding performance in Painting," to which shall be added a Prize of £10. Any balance of income not so used is to be utilised as a Bursary Fund for "needy and deserving" students in the Slade School. The Medal, a first copy of which was presented by the Memorial Committee, was designed by Mr. C. W. Dyson Smith and bears on its face a portrait of Mr. Wilson Steer.

Messrs. H. K. Lewis & Co., Ltd., the College booksellers, have marked the occasion of their Centenary by making a generous donation of £1,000 to the College Rebuilding Fund, to commemorate their close association with the College throughout the hundred years.

An anonymous donor has given £250 as a memorial to the late Mr. R. S. Makower and the late Mr. A. J. Makower. While no conditions are attached, the donor expresses the hope that it may be possible to use the gift for the benefit of postgraduate students.

Under the Will of Miss Ada Heather Bigg, Student 1874–79, Joseph Hume Scholar, a sum of £50 has been received for the endowment of a prize in Political Economy.

Miss Dorothy Walker has given, for the Department of Egyptology, a number of Egyptian Antiquities acquired from the late Professor Sir Flinders Petrie.

ADMINISTRATION.

The retirement of Miss Edith Goodyear from the post of Tutor to Women Students is referred to on pp. 25–26. Junior Commander Barbara E. E. Sutcliffe, A.T.S., has been appointed to the new office of Advisor to Students from such time as she can be released from her present Service. She is no stranger to the College, having been a student of the Bartlett School of Architecture and the Slade

School of Fine Art, where she took the University Diploma in Fine Art. At the present time, she is an instructor at the Army School of Education. The College Committee have every reason to think that she will prove a most valuable link between the students and the other sections of the College community, and that she possesses the qualities and experience which will enable her to fulfil the function implied in the title of her new office.

THE COLLEGE SITE AND BUILDINGS.

It has not been practicable during the past twelve months to take any steps towards the rehabilitation and reconstruction of the damaged or destroyed portions of the College buildings, other than the emergency preparations made for the reception of staff and students as recorded on page 18. The plans for rebuilding prepared by Professor Richardson have, however, been further considered and revised and a Sub-Committee has been appointed to advise on the allocation of space between the departments concerned. Certain houses in Gordon Square and Gordon Street have been purchased from the Bedford Estate, as a preliminary step towards the completion of the plans for the Gordon Street frontage of the College. The cost of this purchase has been met partly from College resources, partly by a grant from the Court of the University, and the balance by means of a mortgage extending over a period of twenty years.

Meantime, it has been possible to continue to provide accommodation in habitable portions of the buildings, not at the moment required for academic purposes, for certain branches of National work and also for the University Appointments Board, the University Lodgings Bureau, the School of Slavonic Studies and the Universities Bureau of the British Empire, all of whose own premises had been destroyed.

PUBLIC LECTURES.

The Public Lunch-Hour Lectures inaugurated in the Autumn of 1942 have now become an established part of the work of the College, especially designed for the benefit of war-time workers in London. On the resignation last Summer of Professor John Macmurray (page 26), to whose initiative the successful inception of these lectures was due, Professor G. W. Keeton undertook the task of arranging the programmes. As will be seen by the list given below, an increasing number of members of the Academic Staff of the College have co-operated in the scheme. The thanks of the Committee are due to all who have contributed to its success. The lectures are given twice weekly, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 1.15 to 2 p.m. in the Anatomy Theatre. There is a complete lack of formality regarding admission, no fee or ticket being required, and many members of the audience attend regularly. Numbers have seldom fallen below sixty and have at times exceeded the seating capacity of the theatre. There is every indication that the lectures are greatly appreciated and meet a definite need.

The list of lectures arranged since the publication of last year's Report shows that the subjects dealt with have continued to cover a wide field and have, to a large extent, been concerned with the problems of the present day :—

Visitors :—Mr. Vernon Bartlett, M.P., " Europe's Future " ; Mr. H. L. Beales, " International Migrations " (2 lectures) ; Air Vice-Marshal Bennett, " International Security " ; Dr. J. Bodmer, " Russians, Poles and Czechs " ; Dr. Fritz Borinski, " Germany's Educational Problem " ; Dr. Geoffrey Bourne, " Medicine and the State " ; the Rev. J. W. Campbell, " Misunderstanding our Allies " ; Professor E. H. Carr, C.B.E., " Russia and Europe " ; Professor Sir Fred Clarke, " The New Education Act and the Future of British Education " ; Dr. E. Cohn, " The German Constitution from Weimar to Himmler " (2 lectures), and " Legal Aid for the Poor " ; Dr. R. da Costa, " Practical Tasks of Psychology after the War " ; Professor Sar Fatti, " The Italian Problem " ; Dr. G. M. Friters, " Problems of a Far Eastern Peace Settlement," and " China and the Powers " ; Mr. Victor Gollancz, " Books after the War " ; Dr. G. P. Gooch, C.H., " Frederick the Great " ; Mr. W. Hazelton, " Adult Education in National Reconstruction " ; Mr. C. H. King, " The Freedom of the Press " ; Professor H. J. Laski, " The Future of the Civil Service " ; Sir Henry Macnaghten, " Burma, (i.) Geographical and Historical, (ii.) The Political Problem " ; the Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, K.C.V.O., " Christianity and Social Progress " ; Dr. O. Odložilík, " The Heritage of the Slavs " ; Mr. Richard O'Sullivan, K.C., " The Common Law (i.) at Home, (ii.) Abroad " ; Mr. A. D. K. Owen, " New Frontiers of Human Welfare " ; Dr. Innes H. Pearse, " What is a Health Centre ? " ; Mr. A. Pelt, Director of the Royal Netherlands Government Information Bureau, " Holland and the Future " ; Professor D. L. Savory, M.P., " Northern Ireland and the Commonwealth ".

Members of the College :—Dr. O. L. Brady, " Science and Government " ; Professor C. B. Fawcett, " The Neighbourhood Unit in Planning ", " Areas of Local Government, (i.) The Smaller Units, (ii.) The Larger Units " ; Dr. J. C. Flugel, " The Social Psychology of Right and Left ", " Human Affairs and the Psychological Point of View ", " The Psychology of Fascism ", " Psychology and the Appeal to War ", " Psychology and the Prevention of War " ; Dr. W. Friedmann, " The New Nationalism ", " The Problem of Germany " ; Professor J. B. S. Haldane, " Biology and Society " ; Professor G. T. R. Hill, " Air Travel after the War " ; Professor R. O. Kapp, " Britain's Electricity Supply : an example of Industrial Planning "; Professor G. W. Keeton, "The Reform of the Courts"; Professor John Macmurray, "Beyond Purpose", "The Greek Tradition", "The University in Society"; Dr. Ursula Philip, "Francis Galton and Present Day Eugenics"; Dr. G. Schwarzenberger, "The Prospects for International Law"; Dr. M. J. D. White, "The Present Position of the Evolution Theory" (3 lectures); Dr. Elizabeth M. Wilkinson, "Schiller and Education through Art" (2 lectures); Professor L. A. Willoughby, "Four Freedoms in German Literature".

PRO PATRIA.

The following further lists concerning past and present members of the College on War Service have been compiled from College records since the issue of the last Report. The Committee realise that these are probably incomplete owing to lack of information. Any such information which relatives or friends are able to supply will be gratefully received. It should be sent to the Secretary of the College.

OBITUARY.

Professor Emeritus Sir Thomas Barlow, Bt., K.C.V.O., M.D., F.R.C.P., F.R.S.

With the death, at the age of ninety-nine, on 12th January, 1945, of Professor Emeritus Sir Thomas Barlow, Bt., there passed one of that body of great men who brought fame to the medical school of the College in the days before the clinical stages of the course were transferred to the new foundation which now flourishes as University College Hospital Medical School. After a distinguished student career extending from 1867 to 1874 and ending with the taking of the M.D. degree, Barlow's ability soon obtained for him a position on the staff of the hospital, then attached to the College, which enabled him to enter upon practice as a London physician with good prospects. Those prospects were so brilliantly realised that in less than twenty years he had attained to the first rank of London medical consultants. In 1895 he returned to the College as Professor of Clinical Medicine, a Chair which he occupied until the beginning of 1907. He then, in company with his medical colleagues, including Rickman Godlee, John Rose Bradford and Sidney Martin, passed over to the new Medical School established under the University College, London (Transfer) Act of 1905, there to form a close connection which continued to the time of his death.

In virtue of the work he had accomplished at the College, the Senate conferred on him the title of Professor Emeritus in 1911.

It does not come within the purview of this brief memoir to record the many honours and distinguished offices which came to Barlow, both at home and abroad, as one of the leading men in his profession, nor to comment upon his outstanding contribution to the progress of medicine in this country. The Committee desire rather to do homage to the memory of a great teacher. To most of the present members of the College, who have entered into the heritage provided for them by such predecessors, he represented a somewhat remote past: but almost up to the outbreak of the present War he was a familiar figure at College functions and he retained an active interest in all that pertained to its welfare. His name will continue to have a revered place in the annals of its history.

Sir (George) Buckston Browne, Hon.LL.D., Hon.F.R.C.S.

The death of Sir Buckston Browne on 19th January, 1945, removed another noted figure in the medical world who had distinguished himself as a student of the College in the days before the establishment of a separate medical school. His course covered the period 1869 to 1875 and he won many medals, but he did not follow the usual custom of sitting for the medical degree. Instead, he was admitted as a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, of which body he later became an Honorary Fellow. He became a house surgeon at the hospital and also acted for a time as demonstrator in Anatomy under Professor G. V. Ellis. Subsequently he went into the private practice as a surgeon which was to be his life's work and bring him fame. His direct connection with the College thus ceased, but to the end of his long life, which closed at the age of ninety-four, he retained his affectionate interest in it and it was his pleasure to participate in many and varied College occasions. He was always a welcome guest and he leaves behind him a happy memory of a loyalty to the past which has great value in promoting a sense of continuity in a University institution.

Mr. John Duncan Cowley, M.A., F.L.A.

The news of Mr. J. D. Cowley's death on 20th August, 1944, by enemy action while on duty with the Royal Air Force in London, was received with the deepest regret by a large circle of members of the College. Only a few days before the tragedy occurred, his appointment as a member of the academic staff had ceased officially, though he had not actually been engaged on University work during almost the whole period since the outbreak of hostilities.

He came to the College as Director of the School of Librarianship in 1934. The School, founded in 1919, had by that time passed through its initial stages and had been put on a firm basis during the directorship of his predecessor, the late Dr. E. A. Baker, but it was still of sufficiently young growth to require constant watchfulness to ensure that its work was adapted to meet the various needs of Library Service as they presented themselves. Mr. Cowley had the academic and technical experience required for the direction of such a University School and showed himself to be fertile in ideas and possessed of the mental vigour necessary for carrying them out. He devoted himself to the task of development with a quiet perseverence which was very effective in achieving results. His happy relations with staff, students, committee and members of the Library world did much to promote the welfare of the School.

His visits to the United States, in 1933 on the invitation of the American Library Association and in 1937 with a Rockefeller Fellowship, gave him an opportunity of observing at first hand American Library methods and ideas, of which he took the fullest advantage. The long report which he presented as a result of the second visit was of great value to the School of Librarianship Committee and gave striking evidence of the author's powers of observation and assimilation of detail. He had a similar opportunity of studying the Library systems of several of the European countries in a visit paid to the Continent in 1936 as Surveyor for the Library Association.

When, on the outbreak of War, it was decided that the work of the School of Librarianship could not be satisfactorily carried on in evacuation and must, therefore, be suspended, Mr. Cowley undertook National Service for which he was specially fitted as Principal Librarian of the Service Libraries and Books Fund. Later, he transferred to the Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve, and served on the Air Staff (Intelligence), attaining the rank of Squadron Leader. In the meantime, the Goldsmiths' Librarianship of the University fell vacant and Mr. Cowley was selected for the post. He was not destined to take up the duties of that important post, nor to realise the confident hope of the College Committee that he would in his new position continue his association with the University School for which he had accomplished so much during his comparatively short active connection with it.

Mr. Cowley made a large number of friends on the academic and administrative staffs of the College, who deplore the untimely ending of a career of such value and the passing of a colleague who had won their affection and esteem.

Mr. Matthew J. Dawson, F.R.I.B.A.

Mr. Matthew Dawson, whose death occurred on 24th December, 1943, succeeded the late Mr. W. R. Jaggard as Lecturer in Building Construction in the Bartlett School of Architecture in 1928 and continued in the post until 1940. He came to the College as a practising architect of many years' standing and his mature judgment based on experience was of great benefit to his students, as was also his instruction in Professional Practice. His great love for his subject had an inspiring influence which was furthered by the personal touch he had with each student. Of a naturally retiring disposition, his chief interest in the College was centred in his own department, but he joined in its general social life on many occasions and made friends in other departments. The College Committee remember with gratitude his years of faithful service as a senior teacher.

The College Committee also record with great regret the death of the following persons who were connected with the College :—
